

The National Polytechnic Institute, founding member of the University Corporation for Internet Development (CUDI), has participated in several activities, in particular, through the Aerospace Development Center (ADC), it promotes the integration of the "Community of Outreach of Aerospace Matters " in order to involve organizations and personnel interested in this field.

In this context is being organize the " CUDI Virtual Day" to gather representatives of the main entities related with space activities, and through their interventions inform educational communities and society in general, about it purposes, and to present recent advances in this new area and encourage expectations that facilitate and enable to the society the benefits of aerospace products and services:

- Mexican Space Agency (AEM)
- Center for Scientific Research and Higher Education of Ensenada (CICESE)
- National Polytechnic Institute (IPN),
- Network of Space Science and Technology (RedCyTE)
- Mexican Society of Aerospace Science and Technology (SOMECYTA)
- National Autonomous University of Mexico (UNAM)

See the agenda of the event here .